SATURDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 16.

TERRIBLE MINING ACCIDENT.-Details of a terrible accident in the Fourd pit of the Albion mines, near Stellarton, Nova Scotia, Thursday, have been received. The accident took place at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, when the whole force was at work. Overseer T. W. Fraser was called suddenly by some of the men working pear the "Bye pit," which had been some time abandoned. They had discovered what seemed to be a dangerous leak, and while Fraser was talking with Mr. Conway Mr. McKeechaie came up and the three proceeded to strengthen the dam. There were six men in all in the party at work on the dam, and the men worked as if working for life or death, when suddenly with a crash a dam of coal gave way, and the water came through with a rush, carrying everything away with it. The alarm was at once taken up, and all escaped save the six men referred to. H. McKecohnie and J. B Benoit, a French miner, were brought up slive, but neither are expected to recover. The body of Berau was found near the spot where the dam feel on him. Conway's body was found near the same place crushed to an unrecognizable mass. His death must have been instantanes ous. T. W. Fraser and M. Lacon are still missing and are believed to be under the mass of rock which killed the others. At last accounts the searching volunteers had not given up hopes of finding the missing men. The six men mentioned as having been killed are married men, and the grief of their stricken families is terrible to witness. The cause of the break does not appear, and unless the coroner's is quest is more than usually scarching it never Opening and Closing of the Mails.
